

Registration Brochure 2010 – 2011

Under the direction of Patti Schott, Melissa Schott and Michelle Martin

Whether you or your child is enrolling in dance for the first time or after years of study, you want to select a school that offers quality instruction without sacrificing your personal needs. Dance Connection recognizes the need for Students and Parents to experience other areas of interest—working together to resolve potential conflicts.

At Dance Connection, we strive to build strong, healthy bodies and strengthen mental discipline. Dance develops poise, grace, balance, expression, personality and self-confidence. It is fun while promoting good posture, body coordination, rhythm perception and social development. Dancing creates a sense of personal satisfaction, accomplishment and a feeling of belonging, as Students learn to get along with others.

Dance Connection continually encourages appreciation for dance as an original performing art, while providing the highest level of instruction through technique, style and quality performance.

As a family owned and operated business since 1984, we understand your needs. We invite you to come visit us and share in our love of dance—where schedules are designed with parents in mind.

benefits
of dance

physical

Dance helps to increase flexibility, improve circulation, tone the body and develop muscles. It also improves posture, balance and coordination. Dancers have better peripheral vision.

intellectual

Dance enriches learning through a variety of perspectives, both traditional and experimental. Dancers learn to play sports better.

esthetic

Dance awakens consciousness of beauty, lending new meaning to movement and form. Dancers move more gracefully.

cultural

Dance increases understanding and appreciation for forms, choices and rituals from a broad range of historical, social and cultural perspectives.

emotional

Dance helps develop self-confidence and self-esteem in a stimulating environment. Dancers learn to be more aware of themselves.

social

Dance improves sensitivity, understanding, appreciation and consideration for others, both for their similarities and differences. Dancers learn the importance of team work.

discipline

Dance helps teach discipline for both mind and body.
